Certificate of Appreciation

Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies

The Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies in Geneva has been engaged in the study of major international relations and security problems confronting the world since World War II. It was and remains open to scholars and students from the West, East and South. Its research, teaching, conferences and public activities contributed to the improvement of the international situation and to the end of the Cold War, the division of Europe and the totalitarian regime in Czechoslovakia. The Graduate Institute continues to enhance the development of peaceful and democratic states and international systems in Europe and throughout the world.

We wish to express our admiration and sincere gratitude to the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies in Geneva.
